Text correction hall of fame

Automatically extracting text from scans of old newspapers and magazines is extremely challenging. Although the best available Optical Character Recognition (OCR) software has been used, the condition of the images it has to process combined with the frequently small fonts used means that many errors of interpretation are made.

Thankfully, many people have stepped in to correct the text and in so doing have made a wonderful contribution to this resource, and helped to improve search results. The following table lists by month the people who've corrected the most lines of text.

Flesh Looed Shearwaters July 8, 1939.

Took what Dr. Cowan thinks is a Flesh Looed Shearwater today on the Goose P. Banks. personally not sure of the identification but am strongly inclined to concur with Dr. Cowan.
Several other shearwaters similar to this one were seen but unfortunately not collected.

July 18, 1939.

at Goose P. Banks we found the Flesh Looed Shearwater to be the most common Shearwater on the Goose P. Banks today and collected good series. This bird is quite easy to see distinguish from the Sooty Shearwater by the heavier flight and the conspicuously light colored bill. Shearwaters were on the whole quite scarce on the bank to-day, the usual large flocks of sootys not being present.
